

How often do you say yes?

the rules change old structures are replaced by new

A photograph of a narrow, winding road on a mountain, shrouded in thick fog. The road is paved and curves into the distance. The surrounding landscape is covered in green vegetation. A prominent vertical scratch is visible on the windshield, running from the top center towards the bottom. The text "it's hard to see the new road ahead" is overlaid in white, sans-serif font in the center of the image.

it's hard to see the new road ahead your market is under pressure it is hard to stay flexible and see new opportunities you cannot trust your customers to keep rewarding you you forgot what makes you unique you have enough consultants' reports outsourcing became a habbit you find it hard to choose your team is enthusiastic, but inexperienced or maybe a bit weary or diligent, but ineffective or doesn't have a clue what's happening outside the manor and inspiring leadership is easier 'read' than done ;-)
